Statement

Gender equality of pay is in place at Morley College London. Again for the third year of reporting the data shows no material pay gap, with the average hourly rates of pay for men and women across the organisation being very similar. The gender pay gap is slightly different depending on what average is used, standing at 0.11% for the mean average (slightly in favour of men), and -1.4% for the median average (slightly in favour of women).

The College takes its commitment to gender equality seriously and is active in taking steps to ensure that it is an inclusive and diverse place to work and study. Such measures include:

- Widely advertising vacancies.

- Setting fixed pay scales for roles of the same type across the organisation.
- The provision of equality and diversity training for staff, with specific recruitment and selection training for managers.
- Providing flexible working options where possible to allow staff to manage their work life balance and a suite of family friendly policies offering provision over and above statutory provisions.
- Careful monitoring of equality and diversity data in relation to all aspects of employment with a comprehensive report being received by the senior management team and the board, with an action plan in place to address any areas of concern.
